Kickoff . . .

Here is the 1955 Carolina Football Blue Book, published for Press, Radio, Television, Photographers, Newsreels. We hope it will be of some assistance to you in covering our games and keeping tab on the Tar Heels.

With it goes a cordial invitation to you to visit us often. It would be helpful if you would make your Applications for Working Press credentials as early as possible. These are mailed out several days in advance of the games to be covered.

Our Press Box is strictly and exclusively for Working Press and is operated in accordance with the recommendations of the Football Writers Association of America and the Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Writers Association. We provide all the usual services and seek to make your working conditions as comfortable as possible.

Photographers are permitted to work on the field within the 30-yard lines, never under any circumstances in front of the players' benches. We also have limited Press Box accommodations for Photographers with long range cameras. Those with such equipment desiring to work from the Press Box should specify in Applications.

Any glossies or matrix desired may be obtained by contacting the Sports News Director. We also are anxious to serve you in any other way possible.

Sincerely,
JAKE WADE
Sports News Director

Athletic Director

Director of Athletics at the University of North Carolina is Charles P. (Chuck) Erickson, himself a former outstanding athlete for the Tar Heels. He has devoted more than 20 years to aiding the University's athletic program, and has been Athletic Director since June, 1952.

Erickson was an outstanding halfback with the 1928-30 Carolina football teams, playing in the "Chuck Collins Era," the years of "the million backs." He was a great runner and an outstanding pass receiver.

He graduated with a B.S. degree in Engineering and entered business for two years before returning to Chapel Hill to work with the Athletic Department in 1932. Erickson took time out from his Woollen Gymnasium duties to make a tour with the Navy as a lieutenant commander during World War II, but has been with the UNC Athletic Department ever since. He first served as assistant to "Coach Bob" Fetzer and moved up to the post of Athletic Director in 1952 when "Coach Bob" resigned to become Executive Secretary of the Morehead Foundation.

Always a well-respected and important member of the Carolina athletic program since he returned to The Hill, Erickson, since his promotion to the top athletic spot, has done an outstanding job and is ranked high by his colleagues.

In addition to guiding Carolina's athletic program, Erickson also serves as head coach for the University's golf team. And here, too, he has been outstandingly successful. His teams won the Southern Conference championships, both team and individual, in 1952 and 1953 and his golfers were runners-up in both team and individual play in the 1953 NCAA Championships. Last season, his golf team went undefeated during its regular season and was runner-up in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament. Erickson has also turned out some outstanding individual golfers, including former National Amateur Champion Harvie Ward, who also holds a British Amateur title among his laurels.

With a deep interest in golf, Erickson has as one of his most outstanding accomplishments at Carolina the construction of Finley Golf Course and Clubhouse. Finley is a beautiful 18-hole course and is a favorite recreation spot for UNC students.

Erickson has served on many important Atlantic Coast Conference, NCAA and University committees and he is highly noted for his concentrated efforts to see a job well done. His position calls for fast and hard work, but Erickson seems to thrive on it.

Chuck lives at 601 Park Place in Chapel Hill with his wife and young daughter.

Head Coach

George Thomas Barclay, the University of North Carolina's first All-American football player, goes into his sixth season as a head football coach this September. It will be his third season at Carolina.

Barclay won his All-American honors his senior year in 1934 as a dynamic guard, his reputation so high that his old 99 jersey number was retired.

Barclay, a native of Natrona, Pa., was a star performer at Kiski Prep before entering Carolina. After graduation, he moved on to the professional Brooklyn Dodgers of the old National League, but a knee injury in his fourth pro game prematurely cut short his playing days.

In 1937, Barclay became an assistant to Bill Rafferty at VMI. The next two years were spent in graduate work at UNC, with Barclay assisting Freshman Football Coach Walter Skidmore during the fall. His physical education studies completed, Barclay joined the athletic staff of Oberlin College of Ohio as football line coach and head basketball mentor.

Barclay got his first shot at big-time coaching in 1941 when he joined Tuss McLaughry at Dartmouth as a line coach. He worked there through the 1942 season and then came three years of service in the Navy.

Though in military service, Barclay was able to continue his coaching as a part of the Navy's physical fitness program. He served as an assistant to Rex Enright at Georgia Pre-Flight and aided Don Faurot and Jim Tatum, successively, at Jacksonville Naval Air Station. It was under Faurot that Barclay first learned and studied the Split-T offense, earlier invented by Faurot.

Emerging from the Navy as a full lieutenant, Barclay returned to his line coaching job at Dartmouth in 1946, but the following year moved to Maryland to assist Jim Tatum. He served there as line coach for three years before accepting his first head coaching job in 1949 at Washington & Lee.

His 1949 club at W&L won 4, lost 4 and tied 2, but the next year Barclay's Generals captured the Southern Conference championship by winning 8 and losing only 2. The losses were to powerful Tennessee and Virginia. His third and final club at W&L won 6, and lost 4.

In 1952, Carl Snavely, making plans to install a Split-T offense at Carolina to replace the old single wing, summoned Barclay, whose successful efforts at W&L had gained him the reputation of being one of the nation's outstanding young Split-T coaches, to Chapel Hill. He served one year as assistant to Snavely, and when Snavely resigned Barclay was elevated into the top football coaching spot.

Forty-four years old (born May 24, 1911), Barclay is married to the former Maryellen Holbrook of Van Wert, Ohio. They have two daughters, Pamela, 11, and Carol, 14.

Assistant Coaches

MARVIN BASS: This native of Petersburg, Va., sometimes affectionately called "Moose," was an outstanding tackle at the College of William and Mary during his undergraduate days. He was All-Southern Conference in 1942 and captain of the Indians during that same season, a year in which W&M won the conference title.

Despite some attractive offers to play and coach in the professional football ranks, Bass decided to stay on at William and Mary as line coach, and in the following years developed some of the Indians' most outstanding forward walls. It was these impressive W&M lines that attracted North Carolina's Carl Snavely to the coaching of Bass and in 1951 "Moose" joined Snavely in Chapel Hill. The following year, however, a coaching turnover at Williamsburg sent Bass back to W&M as line coach and after one season as an assistant was named head coach. After one year as head coach at W&M, Bass moved on to the professional Washington Redskins as line coach, and in 1953 he was appointed an assistant to Barclay as the latter formulated his first staff at Carolina.

Bass is married to the former Audrey Wallace and they have an adopted son, Randy, who is seven years old.

STEVE BELICHICK: Like Marvin Bass, Steve Belichick is entering his third season as an assistant football coach at Carolina under Head Coach George Barclay. He was an impressive halfback during his undergraduate days at Western Reserve and he later continued his backfield work with the professional Detroit Lions. Belichick's undergraduate playing at Western Reserve, incidentally, was under Bill Edwards, who was a fellow assistant coach at Carolina during the past two years. Edwards left the UNC staff last summer to become head coach at Wittenberg College.

Belichick began his coaching career as a part of the Navy V-12 program when he coached at Southwestern Louisiana Institute. After two years of oversea duty, he then became head coach at Hiram College in Ohio. He worked at that post three years before moving on to Vanderbilt, where he rejoined his old Western Reserve coach, Edwards, as his assistant. He aided Edwards four seasons before accepting his present job at Carolina.

He is married to the former Jeanette Munn of West Palm Beach, Fla. They have a three-year-old son, William Stephen.

TOM FETZER: The newest addition to Carolina's coaching staff is a native of Reidsville, where he was a sparkling halfback on the high school team. As a college performer, he starred three years at Wake Forest, his first season as a single wing tailback. When Coach "Peahead" Walker switched to the "T" formation, Tom became his "T" quarterback.

Fetzer's forte was kicking and passing, although he was also a fine runner. It is well remembered by Carolina fans that his dead-eye passing enabled the Deacons to turn back the great Tar Heel team of 1947, on which Charlie Justice was a star.

Tom has had five years coaching experience, four at Davidson and one at Furman. He has always worked primarily with the backs and that will be his assignment here.

Tom is 28 years old, married to the former Jewel Harrell of Ahoskie and the two have a young son. He reported too late for spring practice but has been on the job most of the summer.

Quote From Coach

"More hustle and desire, better bench strength, but a definite lack of experience will mark North Carolina's 1955 football team.

"We feel that we will have a better line and backfield because of our added bench strength. However, we will make mistakes at the beginning of the season because of the lack of experience of the many sophomores who will be playing this year.

"Probably our biggest strength this coming year will be our over-all team speed, with such veterans as Ed Sutton, Larry McMullen, Will Frye, John Jones and Ken Keller, and our new sophomores Jim Varnum, Buddy Payne, Joe Temple, Phil Blazer and Dick Smith leading the way.

"Kicking, which was a big problem last year, shouldn't worry us so much because of the improvement of Will Frye and a great prospect from last season's freshman team, Wally Vale.

"All in all, we look for a generally improved team. But any year you play four of the nation's top teams, like Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Maryland and Duke, you can expect a tough season. However, we are confident that the boys will keep trying and that we will field a representative team."

GEORGE BARCLAY, Head Coach

The Outlook

They are still looking for a first rate quarterback on the Hill and once again North Carolina's football strength will depend a great deal on how good a man is finally delegated to play in that vital position.

There are five candidates, three of them sophomores and one of the yearling group likely will be the starter. At the end of spring practice Ron Marquette of Pennsville, N. J., biggest of the lot at 185 and 6-2, and 160-pound David Reed, of Shamokin, Pa., were the front runners.

Tar Heel coaches believe high school sensation Buddy Sasser, despite his fragile 155 pounds, also has a fine opportunity to make the ball club. He handles himself well. Letterman Len Bullock and Doug Farmer round out the group.

That's still a questionable spot, but general overall improvement is expected for the team. A tough schedule, made even tougher by the addition of Oklahoma, will make it difficult for the Tar Heels to improve on their 1954 record of four wins, five losses and one tie.

There are other problems. One job will be to replace five graduating letterman guards. There is a linebacking question. Center George Stavnitski, who should be a lot of football player this season, will be competent in one of the slots. The entire linebacking position has not been resolved.

The most talked about offensive man on the squad is Ed Sutton, the 195-pound right halfback from Cullowhee, N. C., who as a sophomore last year was a sensation, especially in the Wake Forest game, when he ran like crazy. Sutton was used sparingly last year but in 21 runs he collected 222 net yards, for a 11.2 average, topping the squad.

The enigmatic Ken Keller is tentatively listed for the left halfback post. Keller had one of his big days in the Blue-White game and he owns all the natural qualifications to play the biggest of big time football. Letterman Don Lear should be improved at fullback with a year's seasoning to his credit.

Sophomore Wally Vale is believed to have a good chance to break in the starting lineup. He is a brilliant punter, the only firmly established kicker on the squad. Howard Williams, who played so well as a freshman, is listed number two behind Lear at fullback, and Larry McMullen, a junior, backs up Sutton.

Dark horse among the backfield candidates may turn out to be speedy Joe Temple, the sophomore from Valdese. Speed will be an outstanding characteristic of the backfield. A lot will depend on whether the sophomores can get their feet on the ground and measure up defensively. It looks to be a pretty promising group of "horses."

Sophomores are key men among the linemen, too, although only one appears likely to be a starter. He is the monumental Buddy Payne, a right end who teams up well with alternate captain Will Frye, ace among the veteran returnees, the other flanker. Will is almost too aggresive for his own good but he is sound, too, and last year led the team in pass receiving. Top things are predicted for Payne.

Captain Roland Perdue, at right tackle, and center George Stavnitski are probably the most outstanding holdovers. John Jones has been shifted to a guard spot and Jack Maultsby is an anchor at left tackle. Bill Koman is a fixture at right guard and should be in for a good season.

There are some highly promising sophomores in position to play a lot as reserves and who may even break into the starting picture. This group of forwards include Phil Blazer, Hap Setzer, Jack Lineberger and Jim Jones. Sophomores will have much to do with the success or failure of the 1955 Tar Heels.

Coach George Barclay is right optimistic. "All in all," he says, "we look for a generally improved team. But any year you play four of the nation's top teams, like Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Maryland and Duke, you can expect a tough season. However, we are confident the boys will keep trying and will be a representative team."

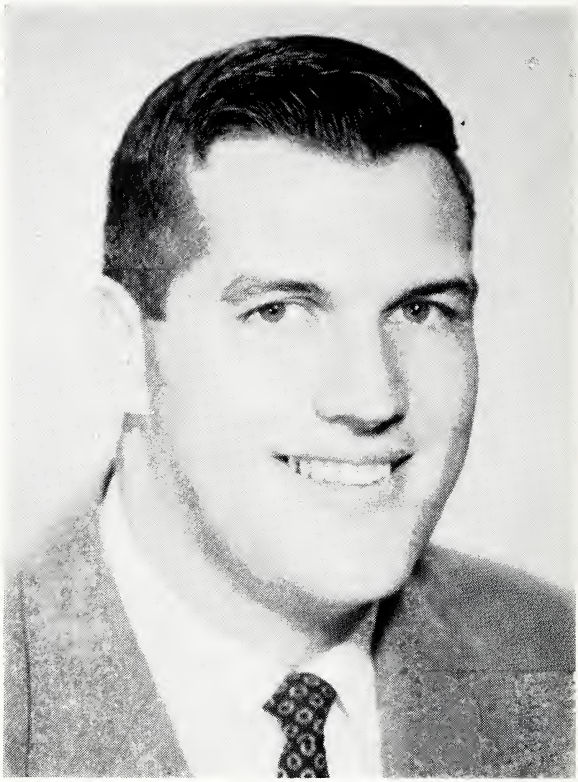
Assistant Coaches: Bill Kuhn, Ham Wade.

Freshman Coach



RALPH FLOYD: A native of Bethesda, Maryland, Ralph Floyd begins his second season this fall as freshman coach. He came to the University last year after building up a fine reputation as both a coach and recruiter while serving two years at the University of Richmond.

Floyd, like fellow assistant Marvin Bass, was a line star at William and Mary during his undergraduate days. He lettered at guard for three seasons. The tall, well-built coach attended classes at Carolina briefly before entering military service during World War II, but entered W&M upon being discharged. Floyd did his W&M playing when Bass was assistant Indian coach under Rube McCray.

Floyd started his coaching career as head grid mentor at Front Royal, Va., High School in 1950 and when Bass became William and Mary head coach in 1951, Floyd joined him as defensive line coach. Then came Floyd's two years of coaching at Richmond.

Thirty years old, Floyd is married to the former Suzanne Trimble of Arlington, Va.

Player Profiles

ENDS

62—WILL FRYE, 21, 6-0, 190, Senior, Hickory, N. C. One of the nation's outstanding ends. Rough and ready, aggressiveness is the keynote of his play. Defense probably is his forte, but last year he caught 12 passes for 100 yards, topping his comrades in that department. Baseball star in the spring. Alternate captain of the football team this fall.

66—BUDDY PAYNE, 19, 6-3, 206, Sophomore, Norfolk, Va. All-State among Group 1 high schools in Virginia. Also an outstanding high school baseball player. Most impressive in spring drills when he stamped himself as a superior prospect. Coaches believe he can scale the peak in college football.

68—DARDEN LIVESAY, 20, 6-2, 198, Junior, Emporia, Va. An All-State selection in high school in addition to making group and regional squads. Among the group of five ends who lettered last year. Plans to be an accountant.

69—PAUL PULLEY, 19, 6-1, 185, Sophomore, Durham, N. C. Made All-Eastern, All-State, Wigwam All-American, and Shrine Bowl teams in high school. Also played three years of basketball and baseball in high school. Forced to miss spring practice Blue-White game because of injuries.

60—NORMAN LANE, 21, 6-2, 205, Senior, Roselle Park, N. J. Third year on varsity, second year as letterman. All-State in high school two years where he broke county records by catching ten touchdown passes in one season. Caught ten passes last year for UNC for 112 yards and 1 TD. Studying Dentistry.

61—VINCE OLEN, 23, 6-2, 214, Sophomore, Swoyerville, Pa. Hustler in spring drills, may see a lot of action. Outstanding high school performer, and a standout for the freshman team last year. Has striking resemblance to Art Weiner, All-America end of few seasons back.

63—LARRY MUSCHAMP, 21, 6-0, 187, Senior, Mt. Berry, Ga. Greatly improved since his first year on the team, three seasons ago. Ranks next to Frye and Lane as an end in pass receiving. Strong, sturdy, consistent performer.

67—CHARLES ROBINSON, 20, 6-0, 184, Sophomore, Mars Hill, N. C. Another fine prospect up from last season's outstanding frosh team. Will help considerably to make the end spot one of the best fortified positions on the team. Will be used at right end with Payne, Lane, and others.

64—DOUG MALONE, 20, 6-0, 175, Junior, Pulaski, Va. Small but aggressive end who was outstanding as a freshman and who showed enough hustle to earn a varsity letter last season. Made

All-County team three years running while performing for Pulaski High. Malone is a business administration major.

TACKLES

ROLAND PERDUE, 21, 6-2, 224, Senior, College Park, Ga. This pre-ministerial student was a member of many all-star high school teams including All-State, and as a freshman he jumped from the jayvees to second string varsity guard. Hampered by injuries during his sophomore year, he came into his own last year and made the All-ACC Associated Press team. Elected captain for 1955.

77—JACK MAULTSBY, 23, 6-0, 222, Senior, Chapel Hill, N. C. Bulwark of the line last year, shows promises of becoming one of the really great tackles. Lettered here for two years before joining the Marines, where he made several All-Star service teams. Also lettered as baseball catcher.

83—CECIL SEALS, 21, 6-2, 220, Junior, Cherryville, N. C. Seals is in his first season with the varsity but showed indications in spring practice that he may see some action this year. Needs experience, but will improve.

87—JOHN LAMBERT, 6-2, 206, Senior, Rocky River, Ohio. Has worked his way up from the jayvee ranks to a top varsity position. Ranks high as an offensive player. Made All-Conference two years in Ohio high school.

90—BILL BOYETTE, 21, 5-11, 215, Junior, Chadbourn, N. C. Brother of halfback Charlie Boyette, played four years of high school football and baseball. Was not a member of last year's squad, but looks to be good prospect for this season's team.

70—PHIL BLAZER, 19, 6-1, 210, Sophomore, Whitaker, Pa. While playing three years on the Munhall High School team he made All-Western Pennsylvania, and honorable mention All-State. In high school he was also a wrestler and a baseballer. He is one of the team's golden sophomores and is considered a real prospect.

72—JOHN BILICH, 20, 6-2, 218, Junior, Aliquippa, Pa. Letterman behind Perdue at the right tackle spot, Bilich will be much improved over his fine performances of last season. Had a great season with the Tar Babies during his freshman year. Looked impressive in spring drills.

75—WILSON SHOULARS, 21, 6-0, 202, Senior, Rich Square, N. C. Was a top guard last year, but has been converted to tackle for this season. Three-sports man in high school and an All-Conference football player as captain of his team. One of four returning tackle lettermen.

78—DICK SMITH, 19, 6-1, 214, Sophomore, Pottsville, Pa. Promising tackle on right side. Tentatively slated for third string duty at a very strong position. Big, strong, and moves well. A real hustler. Had very impressive season with Tar Babies.

GUARDS

73—JOHNNY JONES, 21, 6-2, 211, Junior, Richmond, Va. Used at tackle spot last year. Big, husky, brawny fellow. Throws shot and discus for UNC track team. Played at Sanford, N. C., before moving to Virginia. Had fine record as a prep player for Greenbrier Military School in West Va. before entering Carolina.

74—GLENN DAUGHTRY, 20, 5-10, 185, Sophomore, Durham, N. C. Physical Education major who lettered four years in high school and made All-Conference two years while performing for Mt. Olive High School. Went out for halfback here, but was switched to guard where he is looking impressive.

82—BILL KOMAN, 20, 6-2, 213, Senior, Aliquippa, Pa. In his second year as a guard, after serving one year at the center slot. One of two returning lettermen guards, and he stacks up as one of the top linemen on the team. His experience will add greatly to the right side of the line.

80—BILL WOODS, 19, 6-1, 185, Sophomore, College Park, Ga. An English major with three years of high school football experience and a year with the Tar Baby club. While a guard for College Park High he made All-State, All-Greater Atlanta, and All-Region teams. Had a good season with the Tar Babies and is slated for third string on the right side of the line.

89—JACK LINEBERGER, 19, 5-11, 205, Sophomore, Belmont, N. C. This husky guard had a good season with the Tar Babies last year, and is expected to aid the Tar Heel cause greatly this year on the left side. His four years of high school ball ended with his selection to the Shrine Bowl team. He was also chosen to play in the East-West All-Star game, and made All-County, All-State, All-Southern, and All-America teams.

88—HAP SETZER, 19, 5-11, 205, Lenior, N. C. Similar to Lineberger in build, and, incidentally, is his roommate. He too was chosen to play in the Shrine Bowl and the All-Star game in Greensboro. Setzer won All-State and All-Conference honors for three years. He was also a fine baseball and basketball player in high school and enjoyed a good season with the Tar Baby baseballers this past spring.

84—THOMPSON EVANS, 22, 5-11, 190, Senior, Shelby, N. C. Evans will be making his first appearance as a Carolina footballer this season. He has had no previous connection with the squad, although he is a senior. Will give depth to the spot hit hardest by graduation.

CENTERS

52—GEORGE STAVNITSKI, 20, 6-1, 210, Junior, Fairfield, Conn. Expected to be among top ACC linemen, Stavnitski will be the strong man in one of strongest lines the Tar Heels have had in some time. Had excellent season as a Tar Baby center, and was all over the field in the Blue-White game this past spring. His brawn and ability gained him many honors in high school, including all-county, all-district, all-state and all-prep. One of the team's candidates for All-America honors.

53—JACK LLEWELLYN, 19, 6-0, 185, Sopho- Kingston, Pa. With four years of high school ball and a good year with the Tar Babies last year behind him, Jack should prove a valuable reserve for the UNC team. He is fast, has good reflexes, and is a real hustler.

51—JIM JONES, 19, 6-2, Sophomore, Greensboro, N. C. Hampered by injuries last season, Jones is expected to come into his own with the Tar Heels this season, for the pre-dental student turned in four brilliant years of play at Greensboro Senior High. He was selected for All-Western Conference, All-State, All-Southern, All-American, and Shrine Bowl honors, and was the most outstanding player on the All-Southern team, Jones was also voted the most outstanding player in the North Carolina All-Star Game.

56—LEONARD RHYNE, 20, 6-2, 197, Junior, Gastonia, N. C. After making All-Star linebacker at Gastonia where he won honors as "most improved" and "most valuable" player, he turned in a fine year at halfback for the Tar Baby team, and then was switched to the center post for last season, where he performed ably. Has not fully developed, but has great potential.

QUARTERBACKS

20—DOUG FARMER, 20, 5-11, 168, Junior, Pulaski, Va. Small in stature but handles the quarterback spot with great deception. Good passer. Completed six of nine last year for 59 yards and one TD. Had trouble on ground last year, but a year of experience has helped here. Distinguished himself as an outstanding Virginia high school player before coming to Carolina.

23—BUDDY SASSER, 19, 5-11, 155, Sophomore, Conway, S. C. A small but capable performer. Good broken-field runner, and first rate ball handler, especially on the option play. Numerous honors in high school including All-America, All-State, Shrine Bowl, and was voted the most outstanding AA player in South Carolina. He also starred in basketball and baseball while performing for Conway High. Little but loud and some predict he will be a starter.

21—DAVID REED, 20, 6-0, 160, Sophomore, Shamokin, Pa. Alternated with Sasser at the quarterback post on the frosh team last year and was effective as a passer. However, he was hampered with an injury part of the season, and did not see action in a couple of games. His high school laurels include All-State in 1952, and he was a good all round performer, taking part in track, basketball, and wrestling. Could be the man at quarterback!

24—RON MARQUETTE, 18, 6-2, 185, Sophomore, Pennsville, N. J. Of the three quarterbacks up from the frosh team of last year, Marquette is the biggest, and this fact alone gives him a good chance to start many games. But besides being a good, big boy, the New Jersey product has four years of high school experience behind him, although only one year in high school was spent at the QB post. While in Salem High he was selected to the All-Tri-County Conference and second team South Jersey spot. He was also a two year winner of All-South Jersey basketball honors, and a baseball and track standout.

25—LEN BULLOCK, 23, 6-1, 170, Senior, Ayden, N. C. Teedee was the team's top passer last year. completing 31 of 55 attempts for 283 yards and three touchdowns. He was second on the team in punt returns and third in kickoff returns, plus having a 27.6 punting average for the five times that he put his toe into the 'skin. Although passing is main attribute, last season he also netted 96 yards rushing.

HALFBACKS

30—ED SUTTON, 20, 6-1, 194, Junior, Cullowhee, N. C. The brilliant Morehead Scholar, who also is a basketball and track performer as well as an outstanding footballer, will be a valuable man at the right half position. Last season he picked up 237 yards in 21 carries for a 11.2 average. His biggest game was against Wake Forest last year, when he rushed four times for 127 yards, an average of 31.7, and scored on two of the four times he had possession of the ball. Particularly good because of his speed.

34—CHARLES BOYETTE, 20, 5-9, 163, Junior, Chadbourn, N. C. Did not see much action last year, his first as a varsity man, but saw a great deal of action on the frosh team the year before. His aggressiveness makes him a promising halfback prospect. He was a four letterman and an outstanding school leader at Chadbourn High, and received the Benjamin Soloman wrestling award as a UNC wrestler last year.

35—KEN KELLER, 20, 5-10, 175, Senior, Salina, Pa. Will be top man at the left half spot, as he has been since his sophomore year. He has for several years been an individual statistical leader in many departments, including rushing, kickoff returns, scoring, and pass receiving. Keller is also a top outfielder in baseball.

47—LARRY McMULLEN, 20, 6-1, 197, Junior, Lumberton, N. C. Big, strong, and fast, and has shown defensive as well as offensive skill. He showed flashes of brilliance last fall, and could develop into a top runner. In 20 carries last year, he was thrown for a loss only once. Was an All-Eastern, All-State, and Shrine Bowler in high school. Placed fifth in the 100-yard dash in the conference outdoor track meet this past spring, a good indication of his speed.

32—JOE TEMPLE, 20, 5-11, 180, Sophomore, Valdese, N. C. With a fabulous four-year high school career behind him, Joe came to UNC and last season carried on his fine ways with the frosh team. This year he will be a valuable man to the varsity. While in high school he received Shrine Bowl, All-State, All-Southern, and honorable mention All-American honors. He was also a whiz with the freshman baseballers last spring. Very fast.

39—DICK DARLING, 20, 6-0, 196, Sophomore, Elizabeth City, N. C. This flash back had an outstanding season with the Tar Babies last year, which is a good indication that he will fare well with the varsity. His willingness to work earned for this four-year high school letterman spots on All-Conference team two years running, and places on the All-Eastern and Shrine Bowl teams.

33—JIM VARNUM, 19, 5-11, 165, Sophomore, Shalotte, N. C. A really fast man, Varnum was a top point getter on this past spring's freshman track squad as a dash man, winning the 100-yard dash on several occasions. Last year as the star of the freshman team, he was a dangerous, explosive runner, and is expected to give the varsity some much-needed speed.

29—WALLY VALE, 20, 6-0, 185, Sophomore, Farmville, Va. An excellent punter, the best on the team. An injury to a knee kept him from performing with the frosh last year, and although the layoff hurt his game, he was able to get in some practice with the toe. Looked particularly well in the Blue-White game, getting off several good punts.

37—DALEY GOFF, 19, 5-11, 174, Sophomore, Dunn, N. C. A Morehead scholar who saw some action from the halfback post on the freshman team. Impressive on defense. Shifty, alert player.

38—FRANCIS BERRY, 24, 5-10, 180, Sophomore, Fayetteville, N. C. The oldest man on the squad, Berry is a returning serviceman. His being away hurt him but he is getting back to his old form, and looked good in spring practice, although he still has a lot to learn.

44—STEVE KUPCHICK, 19, 5-10, 175, Sophomore, Scranton, Pa. Steve was injured in an early freshman game last year, and was forced to sit out the majority of the season. He reinjured himself after the first few days of spring drills, and was not able to get in any practice. When he rounds into shape again he will be a good team man, especially on defense.

FULLBACKS

42—GILES GACA, 18, 6-3, 195, Sophomore, Munhall, Pa. His year of freshman ball and three years of prep play make him a good prospect for the team. Gaca is a hard runner, and a fine blocker. He was a regular fullback with the frosh last year. Played basketball as well as football in high school.

48—DON LEAR, 20, 5-11, 180, Junior, Hatboro, Pa. A three-year letterman in high school and an effective frosh here, Lear alternated as a starting fullback last season and should do big things this year. A physical education major desiring to be a football coach. Made All-Conference as the Hatboro High co-captain and most valuable player before coming to UNC.

45—HOWARD WILLIAMS, 19, 6-3, 195, Sophomore, Hertford, N. C. A workhorse on frosh team as the leading ground gainer and highest scorer. Runs hard and fast. His four years on the Perquimans High School team netted him many honors, including All-Conference for three years, All-eastern two-years, All-State and All-American. Also played basketball and baseball in high school.

43—JOHN HAYWOOD, 19, 6-0, 200, Sophomore, Norfolk, Va. Made All-State Group I, Most Valuable Player his senior year at Norfolk High. Four years of high school play. Needs improvement on his defensive work some. Pre-dental student. Outstanding leader in high school as vice-president of the student body. Also played baseball and wrestled.

41—DONNELL KELLEY, 19, 5-0, 200, Sophomore, Sanford, N. C. Big and rugged. Was a standout at Sanford high school. Needs much improvement, but this year with the frosh helped considerably.

46—JOHN BURRESS, 20, 6-1, 200, Sophomore, Lynchburg, Va. Was a fine prep star, but he did not play with the frosh team here. Needs to improve, especially his speed. Experience will help him.

UNC Trainer

R. A. (Doc) White, long-time member of the University of North Carolina trainer staff, is the university's head trainer. He was elevated to that post last year following the death of former head trainer Fitz Lutz. One of the most popular members of Carolina's athletic staff, White served as head trainer in basketball and baseball before taking his current post.

White is assisted by students interested in the training field.

EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION

Alumni provide funds for grants-in-aid for football players, and some in other sports, at Carolina through the Educational Foundation, one of the recognized and approved Foundations of the University. Grants-in-aid are issued in accordance with the rules of the NCAA and the Atlantic Coast Conference. Recipients are given an extra special screening. Scholarship, for both entrance and remaining in school, is the key to these grants.

GOOD STUDENTS

University of North Carolina athletes the past academic year maintained an unusually high scholastic average. Administration officials praised their work. A number of Carolina athletes have made Phi Beta Kappa.

All-Star Tips:

All-star pickers in '55 might well keep their eyes on end Will Frye, center George Stavnitski, halfbacks Ed Sutton and Ken Keller and tackle Roland Perdue. They are the nucleus around which this season's club will be built.

Frye

Both Frye and Perdue were All-Atlantic Coast Conference choices in 1954, Frye being named to the ACC Sportswriters' all-star team and Perdue to the AP selections. They will be strong candidates to repeat.

Frye, a top-flight offensive and defensive flankman, will be in his fourth varsity season, having played his frosh year under Carl Snavely when freshmen were eligible. A 60-minute man, Frye also handles some of the punting assignments. He was Carolina's top pass receiver last season.

Perdue

Perdue, a 6-2, 224-pounder, is known and respected by those opponents who clashed with North Carolina last season. Like Frye, he plays almost every minute of every game for the Tar Heels.

The real surprise of the bunch may be Stavnitski, a former Connecticut prep star who likes to play his football rough. A rising junior, Stavnitski moved four-year

SOME UNC HIGHLIGHTS

Long runs—In 1946 Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice made long runs for touchdowns as follows:

Against Virginia Tech, 68 from scrimmage; against Miami, 66 from scrimmage; against Florida, 90 with a kickoff and 70 with a punt; against Tennessee, 74 from scrimmage; against Virginia, 54, 45, and 18 from scrimmage to win the Southern Conference scoring championship. In addition, against Wake Forest he ran 62 from scrimmage to set up a touchdown.

National Records—Charlie Justice set national NCAA career punting average record, 42.5 (1946-1949); Art Weiner tied national NCAA record for pass receiving, 52, in 1949; Charlie Justice set national NCAA total offense career record, regular season, 5,175 (1946-1949).

National leaders—Harry Dunkle led the nation with his 46.6 punting average in 1939; Charlie Justice led the nation with his 44.0 punting average during the regular season of 1948.

Five Big Ones

veteran Bill Kirkman out of the starting line-up last year and played impressively throughout the season. It will be difficult for the all-star selectors to overlook Stavnitski for he readily makes his presence known on the football field. He will definitely be among the ACC's top centers in '55.

Stavnitski

Keller and Sutton will supply most of Carolina's halfback speed and power for the coming season. Keller, a small fry halfback at 5-10 175, was the team's top ground-gainer during the 1953 campaign, but an ankle injury just prior to the start of last season slowed him down and he never got started afterwards. He will also handle the PAT assignments.

Sutton, a rising junior labeled the Cullowhee (N.C.) Clipper last season after a rampage against Wake Forest that netted three 50-yard-plus TDs in the first four times he handled the ball (one TD called back), may be just the man to make the Tar Heels go in '55. The Wake Forest game was his chance at playing much, but he sustained an ankle injury the Monday afterwards that did not allow him to go full blast the remainder of the season. He is definitely a man to watch this year.

CAROLINA'S FINEST SCHEDULE

The University of North Carolina is famed for its big league football schedules. This year it proudly presents its finest home schedule in history.

These home games are with Oklahoma, a magnificent opener, Maryland, Tennessee, Notre Dame and Virginia. Writers covering these games will see some of the nation's greatest football players.

The Carolina-Notre Dame series has been memorable since its inception. The Tar Heels have not yet won, but they have offered mighty challenges and most of the contests have been outstanding.

Carolina has met Oklahoma only once previously. That was in the Sugar Bowl game following the 1948 season. The Sooners won 14-6.

The following pages carry information about Carolina's glittering 1955 opponents.

1955 PROSPECTS

The outlook for Oklahoma in 1955 is only fair. For the first time in his career, Coach Bud Wilkinson and his staff must build an entirely new backfield. They must also construct one half of a new reserve backfield. The line lost its three most outstanding players of last year, left end Carl Allison, right end Max Boydston and center Kurt Burris. Gene Mears, Burris' top flight alternate at center, has also graduated. Only five starters return from last year. The situation is more critical than in either 1951, when Oklahoma lost two of its first three games to Texas and the Texas Aggies, or in 1953, when Oklahoma lost to Notre Dame and was badly mauled by Pittsburgh and shut off with 63 net yards rushing although escaping with a 7-7 tie. Oklahoma's best teams lately have come in even years, 1950 (National Collegiate Champions), 1952 (finest offensive team Wilkinson ever developed) and 1954 (all-victorious). The coming season of 1955 falls on an odd year. And the rebuilding job looks even tougher than it did in 1951 and 1953. Twenty-three lettermen return. They include first stringers Calvin Woodworth, tackle; Bo Bolinger, guard; Cecil Morris, guard; Edmon Gray, tackle; and Jerry Tubbs, center. The '55 Sooners will be at their strongest from tackle to tackle, but will be weak in ability and experience at both ends and at all four backfield positions. —Keith

1955 PROSPECTS

With 75 points scored in the off-season game, indications point to the 1955 North Carolina State Wolfpack fielding a vastly improved team over last year. Even the usually pessimistic coaching staff has admitted that the upcoming team should be 50 per cent better than its immediate predecessor. There are 21 lettermen on hand to afford at least one monogram winner at each position, and one major reason for optimism is the showing of some 30 rising sophomores. The latter were the key men from last year's frosh team which posted a 4-1 record for the most impressive yearling season in a decade. Most improvement in spring drills was noted in offensive line play, a department that lacked spark last season. Defense, however, appears to still be a question mark for '55. But the wealth of talent at several positions points toward improvement. —Hawkins

1955 PROSPECTS

Wallace Butts, dean of Southeastern Conference head football coaches, believes his seventeenth edition of Georgia Bulldogs will be one of the most rugged and strongest defensive teams he has yet fielded.

The Bulldogs' Bowl Master says: "We will be stronger than 1954 but may not do any better, or as well, as our 1954 won-lost-tied record of 6-3-1. The schedule is tougher this season, particularly the opening game against SEC champion Ole Miss on Sept. 17. In spring practice we looked good on defense against running plays but our own mediocre passing attack could not test our pass defense. Our running game is improved. We have good squad depth for a change, with experience."

Butts thinks end is one of his strongest positions, despite loss of 1954 captain and fine defensive right end, Joe O'Malley. Of tackles, he says: "Best corps we have had at Georgia." Counting heavily on all-star hopeful and alternate captain Don Shea at right guard . . . Guards heavy in lettermen, and well stocked with center candidates.

"We are fortified (in fullbacks)," good depth and plenty of speed at the halfbacks, and good all-round player in senior Jimmy Harper at quarterback.

1955 PROSPECTS

The 1955 Maryland football team will be another outstanding one-platoon football team. The Terps, who ran into a little trouble at the beginning of the 1954 season, came along in their expected strong fashion by mid-season as the all-important quarterback and tackle positions molded into the usual fine category that have always been a strong point in the Maryland attack. Maryland lost 14 lettermen, including the entire backfield unit as well as a strong middle of the line. Returning are 23 lettermen all of whom played a great deal of good football for Tatum's split-T team of 1954. The early prediction on Marvland is that the line will be one of the fastest, if not the fastest, since Tatum came to College Park in 1947. The backfield also has fine speed and finesse led by a great one-platoon quarterback Frank Tamburello. The boy on whom the Terps are counting most will be center Bob Pellegrini. Other notable returnees include ends Bill Walker, second-string AP All-American last season, and Russell Dennis, tackles Ed Heuring and Mike Sandusky, guards Jack Davis and Gene Dyson, halfbacks Ed Vereb, Dick Burgee, Howard Dare and Dave Nusz, fullback Tom Selep and quarterback Lynn Beightol.

1955 PROSPECTS

Wake Forest's Deacons are expecting a successful year on the gridiron. Coach Tom Rogers, beginning his 5th year as head coach, is optimistic despite a schedule that includes games with every team in the Atlantic Coast Conference plus three Southern Conference foes. Eleven lettermen return and the Deacs will have experience, speed and more depth than usual. Tackle Bob Bartholomew, an All-America selection last year, heads the list of returning stars, along with quarterback Nick Consoles, halfbacks John Parham, Bill Barnes and Dick Daniels, fullback Gerald Huth and Jack Ladner. The presence of several good sophs at key positions will aid the Deacs considerably.

1955 PROSPECTS

After spring practice, it is apparent that Tennessee's greatest weakness in 1955 will be inexperience. Forty-one sophomores will report for the 1955 season. Because the majority of the Vols have never played in a college game, they are certain to make costly mistakes. However desire and determination to win will make up for some of these errors. The 1955 season will be strictly a rebuilding year for the Vols. Guard, due to experience, age and ability, will be the team's strongest position. The Vol backfield is probably the weakest in the history of Tennessee football, with only one tailback who has had varsity experience. No experienced fullback returns, and only one wingback who saw varsity service last year. There is one experienced man at blocking back. The outstanding returnees are blocking back Jim Beutel, who is team captain, center Lamar Leachman, tailback John Majors and guard Charlie Coffey. Promising newcomers include end Landon Darty, guard Bill Johnson, fullback Tommy Bronson and tailback Al Carter. —Manning

1955 PROSPECTS

As long as quarterback Mackie Prickett and halfbacks Mike Caskey and Carl Brazell are able-bodied, the South Carolina Gamecocks will be strong scoring threats in 1955. Coach Rex Enright will miss All-America guard Frank Mincevich, All-ACC center Leon Cunningham and blocking ace Bill Wohrman, fullback, but an influx of sophomore talent will likely make the Gamecocks deeper than in 1954. In the line capable center Hugh Bell, guard Dick Covington, end Joe Silas and tackle Sam DeLuca form the nucleus. Sophomore end Julius Derrick, tackle Tommy Addison and fullback Bobby Barrett look like possible starters, too. The Gamecocks will be strong, but a schedule that includes Maryland, Navy, Duke and other powerhouses may be too much for an outstanding won-lost season. —Barton

1955 PROSPECTS

To use a couple of time-worn statements, the situation on football at the University of Notre Dame for the forthcoming season will undoubtedly (1) test the spirit of the alumni, and (2) be used to build character. The real reason for this bleakness stems from the fact that the Irish are beset with line problems. Of course, if Coach Terry Brennan and his staff through some miracle could manage to rebuild a line to take care of the six graduated regular linemen, then more things than "character" can be built, and the alumni spirit will not be so firmly tested from the standpoint of standing up under adversity. However, Brennan by nature is neither a pessimist nor an optimist . . . but a realist. And he is not expecting any miracles. He is aware that there are definite and serious line problems. Captain Ray Lemek, guard, is the only returning line regular, but he has a questionable knee. Of the reserves moving up, Gene Kapish, senior end, also missed spring practice because of a knee injury. Jim Mense, senior center, Pat Bisceglia, senior guard, and Wayne Edmonds, senior tackle, are other linemen who had some experience last year as reserves.

In the backfield, Paul Hornung, junior, who was a reserve fullback as a soph, is being groomed to take over the quarterback assignment of All American Ralph Guglielmi . . . quite a task, since Guglielmi was considered among the greatest signal-callers in Notre Dame history. Don Schaefer, senior fullback, and Jim Morse, a smaller boy, is more the elusive type. In spring practice, he was moved by Brennan from right to left half. Morse is a junior. —Callahan

Virginia has a larger and stronger squad and should be moving the ball better. John Polzer, All-ACC guard and captain of the Cavaliers, heads twenty returning lettermen. Losses from last year's team are considered to be light. Jim Bakhtiar, an outstanding ball-carrying prospect at fullback, is the brightest member of the new sophomore class, which also includes several promising linemen. Wilson Tinsley, who has been absent for military service since his sophomore season, is back to lend an experienced hand at quarterback or fullback. Other backfield lettermen of note are Rives Bailey, quarterback, and Herbert Hartwell, halfback. Leading holdovers for the line are Jesse Hagy and Bob Gunderman, ends; Henry Jordan, tackle; Jay Corson and Frank Fannon, guards; and Don Kovach, center. —Turner

1955 PROSPECTS

The losses from last year's Orange Bowl champions were great. If the brilliant Jerry Barger had been the only loss it would have been tough enough, but also missing are Worth Lutz, Nick McKeithan, Bill Conner, Sam Eberdt, Fred Campbell, Roy Hord, Leonard Black, Johnny Palmer, Tracy Moon, Riley Stallings and Ralph Torrance. Principal returnees are Sonny Jurgensen, Bryant Aldridge, Buddy Bass, Bunny Blaney, Bob Pascal, Ed Post, Sonny Sorrell, Doug Knotts, Jesse Birchfield, Jerry Kocourek, W. D. Fesperman, Jim Nelson and Sid Deloatch. The Blue Devils are also expected to be strengthened by the addition of several players who did not play last season, including stand-out fullback Harold McElhaney. Best of the sophomore crop is expected to be quarterback Bob Brodhead, the only frosh starter in the annual Blue-White game. —Mann

Kenan Memorial Stadium

In a natural valley about two thousand feet from the center of the campus of the University and just above the spot long known as the Meeting of the Waters, there is a natural amphitheatre, easily approached by paths that follow the lay of the land. The brook that flows through this valley has cut a ravine so that the floor of the stream is level and smooth and the banks rise with equal steepness on either side.

Here is the site of Kenan Memorial Stadium. In the completeness and harmony of its appointments, the convenience of its seating, and the beauty of its design and location, Kenan Memorial Stadium is unique among the stadia of America.

The stadium, truly one of Chapel Hill's beauty spots, was a gift of William Rand Kenan, Jr., a distinguished and loyal son of the University of the Class of 1894, and constructed as a memorial to his mother, Mary (Hargrave), and his father, William Rand Kenan.

The original cost was $275,000, but the property is valued at many more times that figure now, of course. After the stadium proper was built, a field house was added at one end of the field, where both the visiting and home teams dress for games.

Construction of the stadium was begun in November, 1926, and completed in August, 1927. The first football game played there was between Carolina and Davidson on Nov. 12. However, the formal opening and dedication did not take place until the game with Virginia on Thanksgiving Day. The Tar Heels won by 14-13.

The stadium, as originally built, seated 24,000. For many years, however, an ingenious arrangement of portable grandstands, used for all the games, has increased the capacity to 43,917 seats. On occasions even this capacity has been increased, and games with Virginia, Duke, Notre Dame and Texas have accommodated as many as 46,000.

On one side of the stadium is a guest box, used by Trustees of the University and other special guests. The press box, of similar outward design, is located on the other side, directly opposite. Gifts from Mr. Kenan enabled a complete rebuilding of these structures in 1950. The new press box is of unique design, different from the sprawling press boxes in most big college stadia. It is very compact and highly functional for reporters, radio men and photographers and has been highly praised for its beauty and utility.

The stadium is used primarily for football games but on occasions other functions are held there, including the annual Commencement exercises of the University, conducted in the twilight.

The University

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, chartered in 1789, is the oldest state university in America, having first opened its door to students in 1795. Dr. Joseph Caldwell, a Princeton graduate, was the first president.

The University opened with a single building as its entire physical plant, Old East dormitory, which is still in use today, the oldest structure on any state university campus.

For almost a month the faculty of two members sat and waited for the first student, Hinton James, who walked in from the seacoast town of Wilmington, 200 miles away.

By 1880 Carolina had the second largest student body in the nation and stood at the forefront of American universities.

Although it survived the Civil War, the University closed for five years during the Reconstruction period (1870-75). President Kemp P. Battle began the work of rebuilding, and by the dawn of the century he and President George T. Winston and President Edwin A. Alderman had succeeded in regaining much of the institution's prestige and leadership.

The post-World War I period brought great expansion to the campus of the oldest state university. Enrollment grew rapidly. A six million dollar building program began. And membership in the Association of American Universities, a group of the nation's top educational institutions, came in 1925.

State College at Raleigh and the Woman's College at Greensboro joined the University at Chapel Hill, during the depth of the depression, to become the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Dr. Frank P. Graham, currently a United Nations mediator and then head of the University of Chapel Hill, became president of the Consolidated University.

The University, like the state, has enjoyed steady growth. During World War II, as the home of one of the Pre-Flight schools, and afterward, with the great influx of veterans, the enrollment soared to a peak of 7,600 in 1948. The enrollment now is approximately 6,000.

The University is made up of 14 schools and colleges, but it's boundaries extend far beyond the campus to reach over half a million people through publications, lectures, institutes, conferences, radio programs—and now an educational television station, WUNC-TV. The University has just embarked upon a new era of service through the completion of a $20,000,000 building program. A new Health Center has opened, a complete new set of buildings for the School of Business Administration has been erected, the library has expanded, and soon educational television broadcasts will begin.

About Carolina

Enrollment: 5,000 Men, 1,000 Women.
School Colors: Carolina Blue and White.
Nickname: Tar Heels. Adopted by the State University for its athletic teams because North Carolinians generally are known as Tar Heels. The nickname was applied to the area's residents as long ago as the Revolutionary War. Tar and turpentine were in abundance in North Carolina at that time. Legend has it that British generals noticed bare-footed natives with tar on their heels and first applied the nickname.

Mascot: The ram has been Carolina's mascot since 1924. Victor Huggins, then a student and head cheerleader and currently a Chapel Hill merchant, thought the football team should have a mascot. The first ram, bought by the Athletic Association for $25, was introduced in 1924. The date was November 7 and the Tar Heels defeated Virginia Military Institute 3-0. According to the best available records, the current ram is the seventh. He is called Rameses VII. The mascot is kept on Hogan Lake Farm near Chapel Hill. Bushy Cook is the bewhiskered character seen on the sidelines with Rameses.

Symbol: The Victory Bell, which is not on the campus at present, is awarded to the winner of the Carolina-Duke game. This year the bell is at Duke following last year's 47-12 Duke victory. The Bell was established five years ago by Norman Sper, Jr., and his assistant cheerleaders.

Stadium: Kenan Memorial, a natural bowl in the pines on the University campus. Seating is 43,971 with the supplementary bleachers.

Card Stunts: The popular card stunt feature of Carolina home games was organized four years ago by Norman Sper, Jr., then head cheerleader. Students sitting in the first student section perform these stunts without previous direction or instruction although there is long preparation by the Card Board.

University Band: The band usually numbers around 125 members. It is a popular feature at home games and sometimes is a part of the Tar Heel traveling party. The band is directed by Professor Earl Slocum. Besides its part in home games the band plays for torchlight parades and pep rallies for the game. Its concerts under Davie Poplar on the heart of the campus are popular features.

Alma Mater: "Hark the Sound." Tune is "Amici."

Songs: "Here Comes Carolina"; "Fight Song"; "Carolina Victory"; "Tar Heels on Hand."
